The 2011 Kansas City National Week of Prayer for the Healing of AIDS

The Kansas City National Week of Prayer for the Healing of AIDS is an effort to reach out to all faith traditions and all people to raise awareness and provide HIV/AIDS education.

The Kansas City Week of Prayer was organized in 1995 by clergy and lay leaders from Black churches, elected officials, community leaders, people living with AIDS and representatives from public health and community-based organizations.

The week of events is held annually during the first week of March to mobilize faith communities, service groups and community based agencies to become involved in the fight against HIV/AIDS.
